Here — unsure who we were, we carefully concealed our confusion under a multitude of masks, so as not to reveal we were changing and lost and . . .

. . . Alone in the solitude we thought we'd find a certain stillness, but instead there was entrapment in the institution, and chaos in not knowing who we were — asking . . .

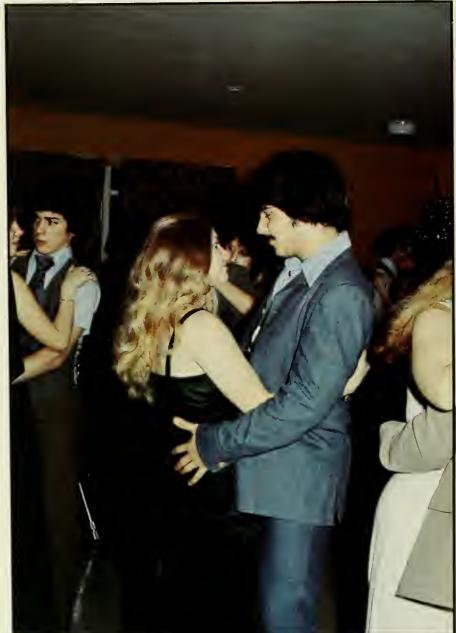

Ignoring answers and each other we learned the hard way, the process was inward — through the doubt, through to the realization of self — where . . .

for commitment; to a team, to a lover, to a cause, to a friend. Whole selves etched against enternity, feeling the power of . . . Belonging to what we do. Spirit and emotion engulfing us — reward for practice and for progress — so we've begun to learn about working in . . .

. . . The group, unity in motion, doused with sweat. Interwoven bodies working inexhaustibly from the heart, gracefully transforming sport to art, while . . .

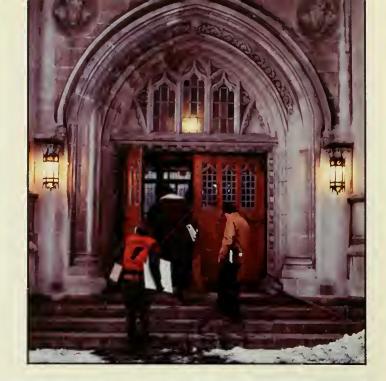

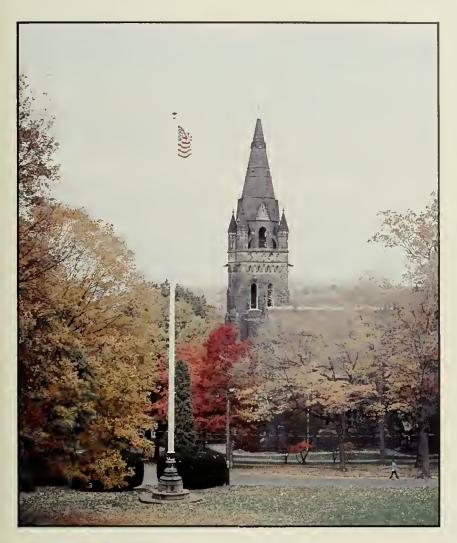

. . . Living together was the real test of camaraderie; there were no formulas, only acceptance for our differences and a degree in memories, like . . .

. . . The hours spent converting work to wisdom and frustration into frivolity. Tired and full after four years of collecting a scrapbook of experiences we are prepared to leave . . .

. . . This fertile, mercurial mountain where we started to sow our dreams — a sense of self began to bloom in the beauty that was Lehigh's.

WHO WE ARE

"To be nobody but yourself in a world that is trying desperately night and day to make you everybody else; means to fight the hardest battle ever fought and to never stop fighting."

— Cummings

ROBERT SULLIVAN

"It is the personal contact with students that makes teaching an enjoyable job. It keeps the teacher from becoming too immersed in his subject matter and makes him aware of why he is teaching in the first place – to help students improve their skills in whatever way, and to whatever degree he can."

Simply stated above is Journalism Professor Robert Sullivan's teaching philosophy, to which he has steadfastly subscribed throughout his 15 years at Lehigh. His contribution to the world of academe is a keen ability to balance a strong adherence to scholastic ricer with a special constitution to his students' individual peeds scholastic rigor with a special sensitivity to his students' individual needs.

It is in honor of Sullivan's personal approach to education, which is so valuable in shaping our sense of self, that we dedicate to him the chapter "Who We Are." Although Sullivan's course work is tough, and his grading even tougher, he has a profound understanding of his students' different abilities, fragile egos and normal bouts with self-doubt.

Part of his philosophy is the expressed belief that the most effective teaching is done outside the classroom, and Sullivan is never too busy for academic, professional and even personal guidance. He is regarded highly as both a teacher and a friend by faculty and students alike.

Professor Sullivan is an exemplary model for all professions, for he is an educator of both the mind and heart because he makes the essential effort to reach out to all his students.

MURIEL WHITCOMB

All aspects of Lehigh's student life have witnessed exciting improvements during the past year. And it's no coincidence that the same year saw an energetic, highly committed woman join the ranks of the University administration.

Of course we're talking about Assistant Dean of Students Muriel Whitcomb, who has endeared herself to the students with her eagerness to listen and her willingness to help. Not to mention her insistence on being called Mert instead of Dean.

Besides a congenial informality Mert brought to Lehigh great dedication to improving the quality of student life. And in recognition of all her accomplishments in one short year we dedicate to her the chapter "What We Do."

A look at those accomplishments is truly amazing and inspirational. Mert is responsible for the enlightening student-faculty discussions which included the Presidential election debates and capital punishment. In addition Mert coordinated Earth Day, a rape prevention education program, compiled a lighting report and helped organize L.U.V. Olympic Day.

The list goes on and according to Mert so will she, as she explains, "There's a lot more to be done." We look forward to her future contributions and ask only one question: "How do you do it all, and do it so well?"

EDWARD GALLAGHER

Once technological advancements were accepted uncritically into our lives. But in the wake of progress, pervasive damage has been left in the form of pollution, technological warfare, and specialization. And we've finally realized we can no longer be complacent.

One man at Lehigh has been in the forefront of helping students realize the impact of technology on the quality of our lives. Associate Professor of English Edward Gallagher has managed in his two-year tenure as director of the Humanities Perspectives on Technology (HPT) program, to build the discipline into a fullfledged minor.

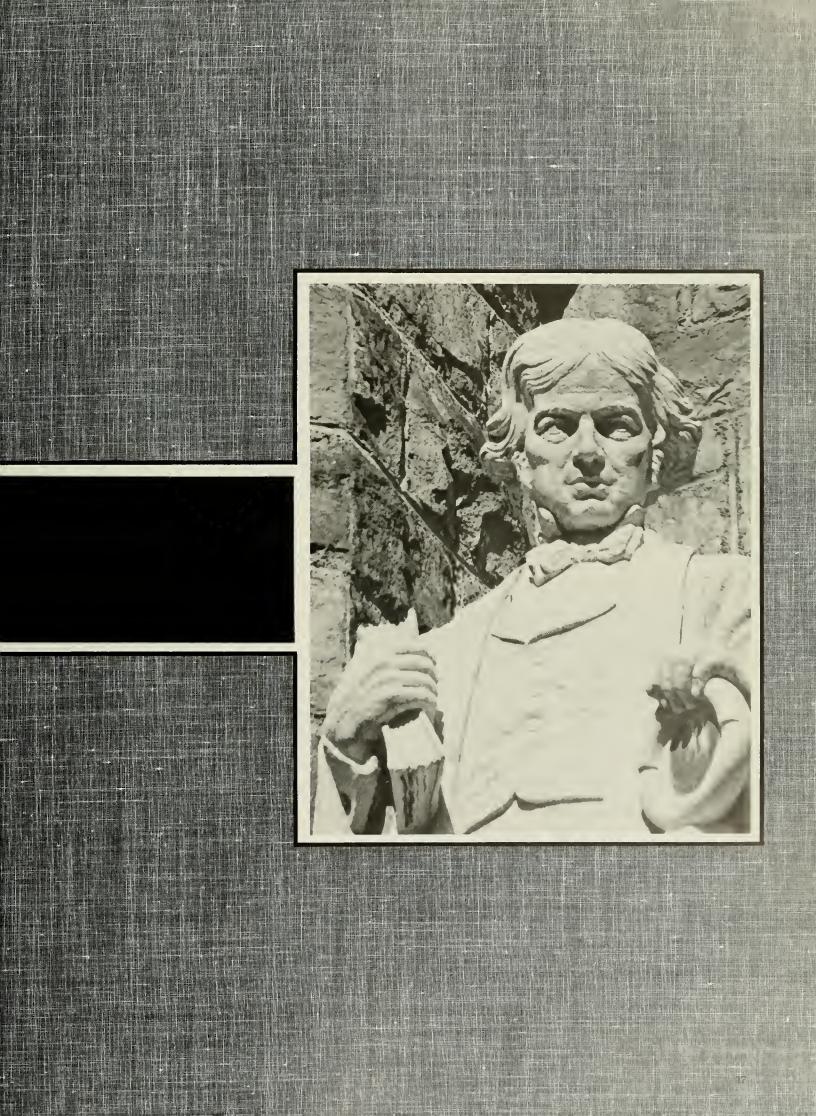

Gallagher's commitment to HPT is rooted in his concern over the aspects of technology which threaten how we live. It is therefore fitting that we acknowledge that commitment by dedicating to Ed Gallagher the chapter on "How We Live."

After teaching a variety of courses, from Science Fiction to Technology and Human Values, Gallagher admits his own views on technology are mixed. Although he could not live without many of the technological conveniences he expresses a concern, apparent in many HPT courses, over the ills wrought by technology. He is especially worried about students who cannot think and work on their own, and about a society which is dying in terms of meaningful activity.

Gaining acceptance at a University with a national reputation for engineering was not an easy feat, since many people at Lehigh view HPT as purely anti-technological. But it is Gallagher's convictions that have helped HPT become a per-manent fixture here. As he maintains, "Technology is so big and so powerful it must be carefully scrutinized, for doubt leads to inquiry and inquiry to truth."

Deming Lewis

Lehigh University is made up of many things, including an able and motivated student body, a dedicated and talented faculty, a wide ranging research program, a large campus dotted with old and new buildings, more than 25,000 alumni, many friends, a substantial financial operation and a great tradition.

Lehigh is also an expression of an ideal and the embodiment of a purpose. The ideal is that each person who has the ability and wish to better himself should have the guidance and instruction which he needs to do so. The purpose is to provide that guidance and instruction to a substantial number of men and women.

At Lehigh we live in many ways depending upon our roles and our preferences. We live in peace but not in complacency. We are ready to teach, to learn, to disagree, but we are slow to fight. We also have the responsibility of living in a rapidly developing world of which we as a university are a significant and a constructive part.

DEANS

Education is the process enabling a society to first identify itself in the context of the past, the challenges of the present, and with an eye to the future, prepare its citizens to transmit its character. The task is so enormous that excellence and perfection are beyond reach. We must keep on trying harder, do more, and do better, knowing that we will never be able to do enough. We must work towards the ideal of helping students grow to the limit of their potential. We must do this more so in the form of a commitment to our future as a nation rather than a contest in achievement among ourselves.

As far as the College is concerned, we translate the challenge into four consequences we seek for our students: learning to think clearly and practice thinking until it becomes a habit; learning to apply knowledge intelligently; becoming aware of value systems so each student can develop a set of values to serve as a reference for decisions; finally, accepting the concept of work as the vehicle for serving society and the will to work as a self-discipline. It is not for us to judge our measure of effectiveness or ineffectiveness. Our measure of success or failure can only be measured in terms of the total performance of our graduates, first as citizens and second on the basis of their contributions to society from their work stations.

William L. Quay, Dean of Students

We are a diverse collection of people; we come from all walks of life. While our backgrounds are varied our objectives are similar; we are here to develop our intellects and to acquire knowledge. Whether we are students, teachers or administrators, we are all engaged in that exciting activity; learning.

Just as our backgrounds are diverse, so are our modes of living. Some live in better accomodations than others. But we realize that "life style" is ofttimes a superficial way to describe how we live. As Wilde observed, it is not what a man has but what a man is that matters.

Intellectual and academic pursuits are a serious but not a gloomy adventure. We are a fun-loving people because we enjoy work, study and play. That is what University life at Lehigh is all about.

Lora Liss, Affirmative Action Officer

Many people at the University wonder why we have an Affirmative Action Officer and what she does. The explanation is complex but put in terms of this year's theme "A Sense of Self" I would suggest the following: (1) "Who We Are" from an Affirmative Action perspective would stress the growing diversity of our student body, our faculty and our support staff in terms of more women, blacks, Americans of native, Hispanic and Asian origins. As Affirmative Action succeeds we should be able to measure its effects not only in statistics but by the felt presence of women and minorities in non-traditional fields.

(2) "What We Do" implies the richness of educational experiences that is possible from a heterogeneous academic community — in the classroom as well as in extra-curricular activities.

(3) "How We Live" is the essence of Affirmative Action. Improved day-to-day relations based on respect and understanding of each other's backgrounds must result if Affirmative Action is to be effective. Bringing in professional women and minorities as speakers, honorary degree recipients, workshop participants, etc. will help supplement those faculty and alumni from groups new to the Lehigh experience. Over time, the goal is a University more representative of the culturally diverse American society, one in which each individual can benefit equally from educational and employment opportunities.

The self, it seems to me, is best defined in terms of what surrounds it, just as a painted portrait gains form and color from its background. "Who we are" is largely determined by what we do and the people with whom we interact. Similarly, here in the groves of academe, the faculty image is defined by the context of the students around us. Clearly, they are the answer to "why we're here"; the life of the mind is our common concern. To paraphrase Emerson, we might say that "Knowledge is its own excuse for being."

I know of no other form of human activity by which one proclaims his individuality or identity more acutely personal and revealing than the creative arts. Descartes may have proclaimed his existence with "cogit ergo sum", but thinking is internalized. With the arts whether you paint, sculpt, act, compose, or write poetry, you exist because you reach outward to communicate with others. Man is the only animal who creates for the love of beauty, newness and self-expression. To be most human of all the states of the human condition, is to be an artist. I paint, therefore I am.

HISTORY

Who we are: "We're those who think that history is an exciting story of how our society, our civilization, got where it is. We're those who think that each of us exists in an historical perspective, that each of us, as individuals and as members of a group or groups, has a past which affects our present and our future. To learn about our common past involves an exciting, liberating and humanizing experience through a vicarious contact with the men and women who have built the societies and cultures in which we find ourselves. We are the keepers of society's memory. This is a most important function, for without the remembrance of things past there would be neither present efforts nor future goals. We are historians, members of a proud craft whose roots extend back to the time "before the memory of man run-neth not."

As biomedical scientists, our lives are devoted to the elucidation of certain processes of living systems which will immediately or eventually aid in our understanding of the disease state and how it can be alleviated. Our daily probing of those mechanisms which allow viruses, bacteria, worms, snails, rats, and rabbits to function and finding common denominators, reaffirms in us the belief that there is unity in the diversity of Nature.

Freshman Camp

Sensitivity groups, general frolic, campfires and three-part harmony made freshman camp a peaceful respite from the first hectic days at Lehigh.

Seven Women Join the Marching 97; 'Gross-Out Bus' May Bite the Dust

I t appears that the addition of Adam's rib will not break the back of the Lehigh University Marching 97.

On September 29 the band broke a 67-year-old tradition and admitted seven coeds into its ranks. However, band manager Andrew Shmerler, '74, affirms that "It's the same great band that it always was and always will be." The band traditionally has been known as the "finest marching band in the East."

Shmerler said he can foresee only minor changes with the addition of coeds. At present, he explains, "the band is a very rowdy and crass bunch of hoodlums when they are in their own company. But as more girls come into the band — well, it's not that the bandies feel that they would have to change, it's that they would find themselves very self-conscious in the presence of girls."

It also appears that the coeds will affect the band's traditional mode of travel. Shmerler said that when the Marching 97 goes on the road it usually takes three buses. Band members and their dates travel on one bus, studious band members on another bus and the rowdier bandies generally ride on the "gross-out bus." This year's coed band members travel in the date bus, but as their numbers increase, the gross-out bus "will fall by the wayside," in Shmerler's view.

Shmerler says the band went coed voluntarily. However, the university's Human Relations Committee was about to investigate charges of discrimination that had been levied against the Marching 97. If the band had been found guilty, university financial support probably would have been withdrawn.

The coeds have not hurt the band's performance. Its members still practice six hours per week and the intensive three-day summer training camp will continue.

Yesterday, today . . .

Four years ago, Lehigh University was an institution undergoing change. Now, it is in a state of equilibrium dedicated to state of equilibrium dedicated to maintaining the status quo.

When the class of '77 entered the University, it was of a different mentality than the class of '73 which it replaced. Student attention no longer was focused on the war, the ecology and students rights, but on graduate school and the job market.

Students no longer were interested in changing the world, but in how they would fit into that world. Demonstrations became a thing of the past. For a time, streaking became the big campus activity.

As the attitude of the students changed, so did that of the administration. Financial solubility replaced student activism as the replaced student activism as the issue of concern.

The University also changed physically. Student enrollment grew and with it the size of the faculty and staff. Expansion of the campus included construction of a new residence hall physics. of a new residence hall, physics building, chemistry building and Field House.

Another lifestyle established itself on campus. The University transformed from a men's school with a handful of women to a truly coeducational institution. The macho image and the myth male superiority slowly disappeared.

Meanwhile, less visible changes took place. A reevaluation of a liberal arts education lead to a restructuring of the curriculum and a dropping of the language requirement. Government redirection of research spending led many faculty members in the sciences to redirect their efforts from basic to applied research.

Four years have passed and the University is no longer in a state of flux. Student attitudes remain relatively unchanged. The University has committed itself to a stable environment including student enrollment and the size of the faculty, staff and the campus. Coeducation has become an established part of life at Lehigh.

The University has not ceased to evolve. It will always continue to adapt to the changes in society surrounding it. But society has slowed from a period of rapid transition to one of slow evolution. Good or bad, that change has been reflected in life at Lehigh.

... and tomorrow

Maintaining and upgrading the University's lifestyle and academic reputation will not be an easy matter in the future. As private education drifts an easy matter in the future. As private education drifts precariously toward the future, the University will be confronted by many challenges.

One of the most serious problems facing higher education is the decreasing number of 18 problems facing higher education is the decreasing number of 18 year-olds who will enter college. Despite the University's over acceptances in recent years, the Educational Policy Committee's report on admissions leaves little doubt that the University will eventually be drawing from a smaller pool of qualified applicants. The challenge facing the University will be to maintain its academic excellence despite this academic excellence despite this situation

Spiraling tuition costs will make that challenge even more difficult. The high price of a private education could make it a scarce commodity. Only those who are eligible for financial aid and those who have $30,000 to spend may be able to take advantage of a Lehigh education. Perhaps one of the most ominous threats to private education however, is the government. How much longer will parents be able to support the burden of paying twice for education—once through taxes to support state schools and again to pay painfully high private school tuition costs?

As the gap between the cost of a public and private education continues to grow, public schools will become more attractive and it will become harder for private schools, Lehigh included, to compete.

Of course, the future is not as bleak a picture as some might paint it. Private education will survive the next decade and the University, with its emphasis on a practical education, may even

But progress will require in-novation. Innovation will require a consolidated effort by the entire Lehigh community. Only then will the University live up to its full potential.

It was a picture postcard day. The kind when the school actually looks like it does in the brochures.

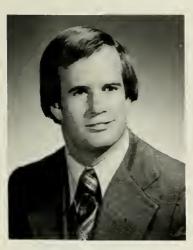

It was as if someone had handpainted each turning leaf with orange and red acrylic, and bedecked the old buildings in rose-gold ivy. The college students, clad in earth-colored turtlenecks, were bustling off to classes or the library, stopping briefly to chat with friends.

This scene, set on the side of steep South Mountain, fulfilled all our fantasies of what college should be — or at least look like. The Lehigh University Admissions Office ordered the day for us, the impressionable and nervous applicants.

We made it through the interviews unscathed, and a year later returned to Bethlehem ready to fit into the picture and begin our college experiences.

It didn't take long for our idyllic visions of college to fade. During the first four weeks it rained incessantly and our clothes mildewed. The handbook hadn't warned about that. Or about midterms and finals that can cause tensions like that of the Six Day War, or roommate skirmishes that are often more violent. It didn't give us a clue about what a gut was or how to read three books at the same time. And it didn't breathe a word about the confusion every college student feels at one time or another.

Looking back now, it wasn't so bad. We seem to remember more sunny days than rainy ones, even if it was the other way around.

THE BENCHSITTERS

or Warming the Bench Isn't So Hot

Sports fans among the class of '77 will remember the familiar athletic names that took up space in the Brown and White twice a week: Don McCorkel, the 190-pounder who finished third in Nationals; Larry Henshaw, the big tight end with hands of glue; the all-time basketball scorer, Charlie Brown, who finished with 1,311 points. Women's sport was enhanced by fine athletes such as Lori Collmann, who not only spoke softly but carried two big sticks, hockey and lacrosse, with quickness some men would envy, and Sue Sachs, the gentle giant who helped build Lehigh's basketball team. Yes, Lehigh had its share of stars.

But who will remember the majority of players who never shone as bright? The crowd never looks into the shadows of the star-studded playing fields to notice perhaps the most interested group of spectators of them all — the bench-warmers, the women and men who got splinters instead of applause, aggravation instead of acclaim. Their patience and tenacity were as outstanding attributes as those propelling the stars to the headlines.

Kenny Schmidt was one of those gifted high school athletes who dreamed of carrying the ball in front of thousands of fans. He got off to a great start here, too. For the undefeated 1973 freshman team, Kenny adveraged more than 100 yards a game. He showed promise, but in the next spring session Kenny hurt his back. As he recalls it, "Coach Dunlap didn't even know I was hurt until the next day. It pissed me off that he wasn't watching me. And they had to carry me off the field."

The 1974 season arrived, and Kenny moved up to second team, with the coaches' assurance that he would see time during the season. By August, 1975, he felt as though he were on his way out. One reason was the growing number of good young players. The second reason was his financial aid.

"Between my freshman and sophomore years they gave me a cost of living increase (to $3,150 a year). But after my sophomore year, getting hurt so much, they lowered me to $3,100 again. I know it was the coaches who did it. They have a lot of pull in there (the Financial Aid office). There was no way I deserved a cut — my younger brother entered college that year."

Kenny returned for his last summer camp in 1976 as an inexperienced senior. He was glad that John Whitehead replaced Dunlap because he thought he had a fresh start, but that was not to be. He was doomed to the bench, even though he was healthy the entire season. Because of his scholarship, he could not quit the team, no matter what his status was.

How does he feel about the football program? "Pretty indifferent," Kenny says. "I thought it was kind of stupid not to give me a chance when I was healthy.

One athlete who stayed healthy, performed well, but still didn't get much notice is Mindy Fener, who led one helluva busy life at Lehigh. Mindy earned 15 letters in high school in Hempstead, N.Y., then began her Lehigh career on the field hockey team. She went on to powder puff football, winning the game ball one year, and took up two new sports: lacrosse and rugby.

In all, Mindy earned four letters, captained the Powderpuff team, and learned two new sports. But wasn't this supposed to be about benchwarmers?

Mindy did sit the bench her last three years in hockey. She didn't mind, though. The freshmen who replaced her "were just better than me," she said.

"The main thing is to have fun in sports; I'm not there to be competitive. If I didn't have fun, then I would dump the game," Mindy said. She stayed on the hockey team because it was not her main sport, because she wanted to play one sport all four years, and because she could burn off her energy in j.v. games.

Mary Beth Krafty didn't come to Lehigh with any dreams of athletic glory; the University didn't disappoint her. After six varsity letters at Bethlehem's Liberty High, and captaining the softball team her senior year, you'd expect her to step right into a starting role. Right? Wrong. Krafty warmed the bench in basketball, appearing only in games whose outcome was certain. A knee injury in a game long lost last year has caused problems of one sort or another ever since.

Krafty didn't mind sitting in basketball. She said "Living at home, I got into sports to meet people. Playing was secondary." Softball was another story. "I really thought I should be playing. I didn't like being used only when someone else didn't show up," she said, Krafty didn't feel protesting would do any good. "I'm not one to raise a stink," she said. "I wouldn't know how to raise one properly."

Krafty said she has stayed in sports "to see how far I can take myself." She added that "There's something about being on a team, a special relationship with people that you won't find walking around on the streets."

As these three athletes demonstrate, the dream of the 90-yard touchdown run, or scoring the winning goal, or sinking two clutch free throws to beat Lafayette, can't come true for everyone. Schmidt, Fener and Krafty also prove that not only the stars are super.

THE NEWS OF FOUR YEARS IN REVIEW

In August 1973, more than a thousand would-be members of the Class of 1977 trouped to Lehigh during one of the worst heatwaves ever to hit campus and joined the not-so-real world of college life. The next four years were to be critical ones of growth and change – not just for us as students, but for the world. Those years saw the resignation of a U.S. president, the end of the Vietnam War, and the first landing on Mars.

But for many students, the routine of tests, papers and pub nights was only seldom interrupted by news from the "outside." Headlines poked through like intermittent dashes, if at all . . . Patty Hearst . . . Squeaky Fromme . . . Jimmy Carter . . . For those of you who missed it, here's what happened to the world during those years – as well as a few campus happenings you might recall.

SEPTEMBER . . . Just before we came to Lehigh, President Richard Nixon had faced the press for the first time in five months. He acknowledged the Watergate affair had hampered his ability to govern, but said he had never considered resigning . . . Some Lehigh freshmen were trying to get adjusted to their rooms in study lounges and dorm libraries. The housing squeeze resulted when 35 more freshmen than expected had accepted University admission offers . . . Residents for the first time were living in SMAGS . . . Sophomore Mitch Fishkin, 19, died during a fraternity prank. Northampton County Dist. Atty. Charles Spaziani ruled that Fishkin jumped from a car in which he was being taken to Saucon Valley by three Delta Phi fraternity brothers . . . As the University Human Relations Commission was preparing to investigate admission practices of the Lehigh Marching 97, women unexpectedly marched with the band for the first time during the freshman parents' weekend football game. Seven band members doffed their caps to reveal they were women at the conclusion of a medley of tunes from South Pacific, including "There Ain't Nothing Like a Dame" . . . OCTOBER . . . As the Watergate hearings continued, John Dean pleaded guilty to conspiracy to obstruct justice in plotting to cover up the Watergate head-in. plotting to cover up the Watergate break-in . . . Three Lehigh students were arrested and charged with possession of marijuana after Bethlehem police and state drug agents raided a room in M&M . . . The announcement that Fine Arts professor Leon Hicks had received a terminal contract created an uproar from black students... In what came to be known as the "Saturday Night Massacre," Atty. Gen. Elliott Richardson resigned and his duputy, William Ruckelshaus, and Watergate Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox were fired when Cox rejected an administration compromise on the disputed Watergate tapes . . . After two years of study, the University Board of Trustees voted against establishment of a law school at Lehigh . . . NOVEMBER . . . Nine Arab oil-producing nations put up an embargo on shipments of oil to the United States . . . The White House disclosed there was an 18½ minute gap in a subpoenaed tape of a June 1973 conversation between Nixon and H.R. Haldeman . . . As the energy crisis worsened, President Nixon asked service station owners not to sell gas on Sundays and said he would seek approval of a national 55 m.p.h. speed limit . . . Lehigh and Delaware tied for the Lambert Cup after Lehigh beat Lafayette 45-13. The Engineers lost to Western Kentucky in NCAA Division 11 playoffs . . . DE-CEMBER . . . Samuel Dash, chief council to the Senate Watergate Committee, told a Grace Hall audience that public confidence in the country's executive leadership was "at its lowest level in history"...

SPRING 1974

JANUARY . . . Allard K. Lowenstein, No. 7 on the White House "Top 20 Enemies List," told a Lehigh audience, "If people knew what the facts were, what his (Nixon's) administration does and stands for, they wouldn't tolerate it"... After mediation efforts by Sec. of State Henry Kissinger, Egypt and Israel reached an agreement to separate their military forces along the Suez Canal. FEBRUARY . . . Patricia Hearst was kidnaped from her Berkeley apartment by three members of the Symbionese Liberation Army . . . The Soviet Union stripped Nobel Prize winning author Alexander Solzhenitsyn, of his citizenship and deported him to West Germany . . . In a historic indictment, seven former White House and presidential campaign aides were charged in March with conspiracy in the Watergate cover-up. President Nixon was cited as an unindicted co-conspirator. . . Tom Sculley won the 134-pound national wrestling championship, Lehigh's first national winner since 1967. . . With spring in the air, about 400 Lehigh students joined the national streaking craze, observed by an estimated 4,500 spectators ... APRIL ... The University faculty voted to eliminate the arts language requirement after months of debate . . . In May, the Maryland Court of Appeals ordered that former Vice President Spiro Agnew be disbarred . . . JULY . . . The Judiciary Committee released eight transcripts which in many cases differed from the official White House version. In nearly all cases, the White House version showed Nixon in a better light . . . The Supreme Court ordered Nixon to give up "forthwith" tapes and documents sought by Watergate Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski . . . After six months of investigation, the Judiciary Committee recommended three articles of impeachment to the House . . . AUGUST . . . President Nixon released three transcripts of June 23, 1972, conversations with H.R. Haldeman. Nixon admitted the transcripts showed that just six days after the Watergate break-inn he had originated plans to have the FBI halt its probe of the matter. Four days later, he became the first president in U.S. history to resign. Gerald Ford was sworn in as the nation's 38th president.

SEPTEMBER... After being in office less than a month, President Ford announced he was granting an unconditional pardon to former President Nixon for all federal crimes "he committed or may have committed" while serving as president. The announcement was met with widespread criticism... Eighty-eight students returned to campus to find that their promised apartments in RH-11 were not finished. The students were put up in residence hall study rooms and libraries... Bishopthorpe was opened as an alternative residence option for Lehigh students... Plus-minus grading was being used for the first time, and the course drop period was shortened from 12 to 7 weeks... The family of Mitch Fishkin filed a $21-million lawsuit against the University, administrators and Delta Phi fraternity... OCTOBER... Students learned that tuition, which had gone up $200 for 1974-75, would increase even more the next year even though the University had run a $463,000 surplus. Tuition would go up by $250, with an additional $100 increase in room and board... Rep. Morris Udall became the first of a slew of contenders for the Democratic presidential nomination . . baby was delivered in Richards House . . . Palestine Liberation Organization leader Yasir Arafat addressed the United Nations General Assembly and called for "one democratic state where Christian, Jew and Moslem live in Justice, equality and fraternity" in the Middle East. After nine days of debate, the PLO was granted permanent observer status in the U.N. . . . Eight former national guardsmen were acquitted of charges arising from the 1970 Kent State University slayings of four students . . . DE-CEMBER . . . Theta Chi alumni recommended asking three homosexual members of the fraternity to move out of the house. Fraternity brothers were split 18-18 on a vote to decide whether to endorse the alumni recommendation. The gay brothers later moved out voluntarily . . . Wilbur Mills resigned as chairman of the powerful House Ways and Means Committee because of the controversy surrounding his relationship with strip tease dancer Fanne Fox. Mills later publicly attributed erratic behavior to alcoholism . . . Little-known Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter announced his candidacy for the Democratic presidential nomination . . . Nelson Rockefeller was sworn in as the 41st vice president of the United States, giving the nation an unelected president and vice president . . .

JANUARY . . . John Mitchell, H.R. Haldeman, John Ehrlichman and Robert Mardian were found guilty of all charges in connection with the June 1972 break-in at the Democratic National Committee headquarters. Unindicted co-conspirator Richard Nixon had not been required to testify during the 64-day trial because of his health FEBRUARY . . . The University canceled classes for a day because of a heavy snowfall . . . In Boston, Dr. Kenneth C. Edelin was found guilty of a manslaughter in the death of a male fetus . . . Varsity basketball coach Tom Pugliese announced he would quit at the end of the season. The team finished the season with a 1-23 record . . . MARCH . . . Lehigh wrestlers swept Easterns. Later in the month, Mike Frick and Mike Lieberman were champs at the NCAA competition . . . APRIL . . . It was announced unemployment had reached 8.7 per cent, the highest rate since 1941. The University Placement Office reported that seniors were receiving 10 per cent fewer job offers than usual . . . The faculty approved a compromise nine-week course drop period . . . Uncle Manny's tavern opened and quickly became a Lehigh institution . . . South Vietnamese President Duong Van Minh announced an unconditional surrender to the communists, ending the long and bloody Vietnam War. The surrender came only hours after the emergency helicopter evacuation of all Americans living in Saigon and thousands of South Vietnamese who feared for their lives . . . MAY . . . Years behind national trends as usual, Lehigh students filled Grace Hall to see the original Broadway production of . . . Cambodian forces captured the S.S. Mayaguez and its 39-member crew. After diplomatic efforts to free the ship failed, President Ford ordered in air, sea and ground forces . . . JUNE . . . THE ART OF LEARNING

Attending college was once regarded as a rite de passage confined to the intellectually elite, hungry to savor the coveted fruits of knowledge. Today, however, the thought of trundling off to the university seems to almost everyone a natural event in the educational cycle.

To some, four years of college becomes an elaborate exercise in avoiding the pursuit of knowledge. To others higher education is a vo-tech training program, where their sheepskin qualifies them to mindlessly perpetuate the status quo.

And somewhere in the morass of myopia are the students who are in some way in touch with a vague intuition that they are here to learn — to be enlightened and begin pondering a world fraught with social ills and promising possiblities. But even for those inquisitive minds who embrace each day with a fresh sense of wonder and who are willing to experiment, to take risks, and simply to think, they discover all too quickly the art of learning is an elusive one.

Has it ever occurred to you that you read more words than you have time to digest? With the press of coincident deadlines for five courses and the irresistible lure of the day's line of bullshit, most readers can plan to retain only the gist of a chapter.

Nuance is often overlooked in the hustle to get through a book on time. It takes special effort by anyone scanning other than didatcic texts to sit for a minute and ponder why someone would have bothered to write and publish such pages (besides for royalties, of course).

Course work may be regarded as an unending series of chores by students, with simultaneous deadlines necessitating the emphasis to be placed on simply getting the work done. Quality is too often sacrificed for quantity.

Too often, professors merely require homework or quizzes to insure that the student has slogged through the prescribed muck on the syllabus. Why the student did the work seems to be secondary. Thinking is an extracurricular activity at the university, an activity for the elusive, quiet spare hour which never seems to come, for it is constantly being usurped by never-ending scholastic responsibilities.

When was the last time you broke the pattern with a meaningful conversation, laced with a profound thought or two. And beyond what it takes to get a "C," "B," "A", pat on the head, how much time have you spent thinking about the words you read?

Learning should not be considered an inevitable result of four years of college — we would be wise to think exactly the opposite, that unless on our guard we will become programmed rather than educated beings. It takes the energy to open our senses to the subtleties in our environment (the phenomena we read in texts and are unable to recognize in life). It takes the ability to care about getting more than simply the right answer to a test question. Sometimes being wrong is the surest route to learning. But in any event the art in learning is a direct result of committing ourselves to understanding; to question and start formulating answers for ourselves.

THE SCIENCE OF AVOIDANCE

In addition to many academic disciplines at Lehigh, there is one you'll never find listed in the catalogue — The Science of Avoidance Mastering avoidance is the key to earning a degree with only a fraction of the effort required of other students.

There are several skills of avoidance. Among the major ones are: careful course selection; recycling; setting a schedule (and promptly throwing it out the window), and an unfailing dedication — to everything but work.

When choosing courses, there are some guidelines. If greeting the sun is not your thing, register for 8 o'clock classes only under the following conditions: 1. Temporary insanity; 2. The class is scheduled to meet in Taylor Stadium — your absence won't be as conspicuous; 3. The course is entitled "Basket Weaving for Non-Majors."

Things get nastier when you discover that nearly every required course seems to meet either all at once or, worse yet, on Friday from 1 to 4. Those with an affection for pub nights should avoid Fridays altogether, or at least schedule nothing more rigorous than SR 41.

Anticipation turns to nausea when freshmen learn that "gut" courses are not what they seem. Professors being the conscientious souls that they are, a "gut" is unlikely to remain one for long once the prof. catches on. Should you hear of a course with no exams, no papers and optional attendance and dash to sign up, it's a sure bet that you (and your 3900 classmates) will be facing three hourlies, a final, four 20-page papers and assigned seats for attendance. Also, consider the source when choosing your "guts." The English major who takes "Rocks for Jocks" as a gut science course should find plenty of lab material between his ears.

True students of avoidance test the outer limits of the grading process by taking advantage of pass/fail grading. You can discover that it's possible to attend four classes, have a friend turn in your papers and still pass the course. Skillfully used, pass/fail can also keep you from joining the "Squares Club" (your cum becomes smaller when squared).

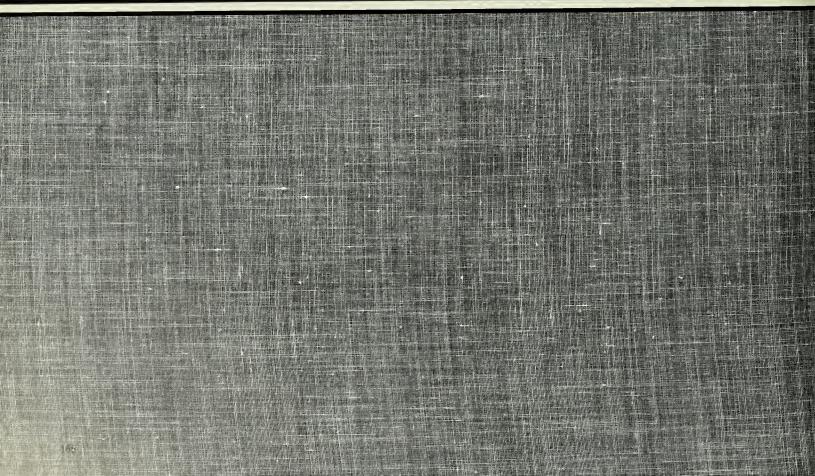

Recycling is an important part of saving our natural environment. It can save your academic environment. One research paper can be used again and again with only minor modifications. "The Significance of 'Deep Throat'" will get you through courses in English, Psychology, SR, Government, Biology, Marketing and Mechanical Engineering. To cover more academic fields, you can always collect or trade with friends.

Should you be tempted to set a schedule for studying, think of the time it will take you to write it down. You could be doing something more productive, such as reading Hustler. If you really want to avoid studying, there's always the main reading room at Linderman. The weeknight social scene centers around there, and it's centrally located: halfway between Smugglers' and Manny's.

There's always a distraction worthy of your time if you're serious about avoidance. Think about it: which is more important to your development as a total human being, the details of Napoleon's domestic policy or Saran Wrapping a toilet seat? Napoleon would understand.

BIRD LEAVES LEHIGH NEST

For almost 19 years Mrs. Bird has been keeping the University alphabet soup unscrambled. If it were not for her the U.C. would be in total chaos — the S.A.C. would be meeting with V.L.C., L.U.V. and L.U.S.T. would be sharing office space, and the B&W would be convening in the W.C. Besides which, Mrs. Bird is probably the only person on campus who knows what all those initials mean.

Unfortunately for Lehigh Mrs. Bird, who has become somewhat of an University fixture, is retiring this year. She has done the University student activities an invaluable service, and she will be greatly missed.

The Lehigh University Circle K Club is a campus action organization sponsored by the Bethlehem Suburban Kiwanis Club. It is one of the largest collegiate service organizations serving the U.S. and Canada. Circle K's purpose is to reach out to the campus and community and in so doing generate a spirit of harmony and concern for the enrichment of society.

The club is dedicated to unifying people in friendship and involvement which is exemplified by this past years activities. The major activities provided a mixture of social, service fund-raising and educational projects. They included the sponsorship of the Annual Powderpuff Football game for the benefit of Multiple Sclerosis, sale of Kiwanis popcorn, assisting an olympics for underprivileged children and the attendance of the 15th Annual Pa. District Convention, as well as, representation at the International Convention held in Washington, D.C. Lehigh's club played an active role in participation of the Pa. District and had one member on the executive board, Dean Konner, immediate past Lieutenant Governor.

The Circle K Club of Lehigh is a growing group of enthusiastic and dedicated students interested in friendship and involvement. Circle K is the middle link of the "Tri-K Family" which begins on the high school level with the Key Club and extends to the business level of Kiwanis. The Tri-K family work in unity to help eliminate the evils that exist. This year the International theme has been "IMPACT ON LIFE."

This society is a student-run organization, having a membership of more than a hundred Jewish men and women students from Lehigh University and Moravian College, sponsored by B'nai Brith. The group has an active social calendar, as well as athletic competition and cultural programs. A convenient meeting place is the Brith Sholom Community Center which is adjacent to the campus. This organization allows a student to continue his Jewis identity in college.

EVENTS

The 1976-77 speaker series offered a much more diverse group of speakers than those of recent years. Lehigh welcomed consumer advocate Ralph Nader and radical Timothy Leary, as well as noted political figures Moshe Dayan, Victor Reisel and Dr. Lawrence Klein. J.A. Lukacs, one of eight Mellon Lecturers, spoke about a link between history and physics. To add a lighter touch to the series, Mel Blanc and his "friends" delighted the standing-roomonly Grace Hall audience.

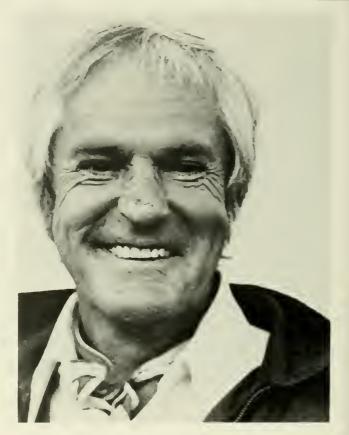

Although the speakers offered a greater variety of topics, the series unfortunately was not up to par. For the first time in a decade, the Blaustein Lectures were not held due to a seeming oversight by those involved, who delayed to the point that speakers were no longer available.

A larger number of speakers would make the lecture series more rewarding in future years.

TIMOTHY LEARY

"There was probably never a decade in human history where so many new ideas exploded on the scene with so much energy and intelligence. No aspect of American culture hasn't been somewhat changed, revised, or improved as a result of what happened in the '60's."

MOSHE DAYAN

VICTOR REISEL

Terry has nothing to hide, for a sleight-of-hand artist's secrets are built right into his carefully developed hand muscles, his most important tools. For almost four years now, this elfin figure with an impish smile, has been been delighting all sectors of the Lehigh Valley with his magic. He's performed everywhere from children's wards, homes for runaways and the emotionally disturbed to fraternities, senior citizens groups, and rings of professional magicians. Director Jim Hill took this lengthy drama by Leonid Andreyev and employed student members of Hill's drama course, The Clown Worshop, to bring levity and some ironic comment to the environment of the seedy Cirque Briquet in Paris. Hill, who has worked with circus clowns before coming to Lehigh, also had his clowns perform during intermission. Their antics were one highlight of the show.

These photographs depict the behind-thescenes preparations of the performers, and their onstage performances. Besides practicing their routines, the clown-actors spent some time applying whiteface and other makeup important to their overall presentation.

Clowns and non-clowns alike sparked this production. Chief among them were Michael Delluva as Tot, the one who gets slapped, and Cora Hook as the young performer who tragically captures his fancy. Larry Kohn, David Miller, and Mark Pyles were marvelously zany as part of the clown ensemble, with Scott Lesher, as the man who stole Tot's wife, brought great depth of character to his role.

FOOTBALL

"Whenever you lose to Lafayette, it doesn't matter if you were 10-0, it seems to ruin your season." - Head Coach John Whitehead.

Unfortunately, even though the Engineers were 6-5, three losses at the wire to Bucknell, Virginia and Lafayette blemished what could have been a much more productive season. Inconsistent play, mental lapses and weaknesses at certain positions hampered the Engineers in close games.

After opening their season with two runaway victories over Kutztown, a Division II team and Baldwin-Wallace, a Division III team, the Engineers played what may have been their best game of the year with a come-from-behind victory over Penn.

They evened their record at 3-3 with consecutive losses to Yale, Bucknell and nationally-ranked Rutgers. The Engineers lost a mud fight to Bucknell 3-0, when they elected to go for the win with eight seconds remaining. The Rutgers loss was the hardest to swallow. Though the Engineers definitely took the game to the Scarlet Knights, they blew their lead and eventually the game in the final quarter with mental errors.

The second half of the season brought victories over Maine, Gettysburg and C.W. Post, but was marred by two heartbreaking defeats to Division I school Virginia and arch-rival Lafayette.

Some outstanding individual efforts must be mentioned. Junior Dave Aprill led the Engineers with his muchimproved all around play. Senior Larry Henshaw again led the receiving corps with 33 receptions, while freshman Jim McCormick led the defensive unit with 98 unassisted tackles. Senior offensive lineman Mark Orcutt was once again named to the ECAC Division II All-Star team as well as the New York Times All-East team.

From the pleasantries of the Atlantic City Boardwalk Relay victory to the narrow losses to Bucknell by five points during the regular season and by four points in the East Coast Conference race, the 1976 cross country squad encountered many frustrations amid the bright spots enroute to a 10-4 season and first place in the IC4-A college division race.

Losses to Penn, Rutgers, Army, and Bucknell pinpointed an inability to deliver a consistently strong team performance, despite many talented individuals.

Senior co-captain Stellan Thoren, unhampered by injuries that marred his previous seasons, capped an outstanding campaign by placing third in both the ECC and IC4-A championships.

While sophomore James Davis and junior Charles Sumrell also performed well, freshmen Dave Rohr and Larry Ullrich surprised the team with their strong races in both championship meets. These undergraduates point to the potential for continued success for future harrier squads.

SOCCER

What did many good veterans and some talented freshmen add up to for the 1976 soccer squad? Disappointment, as the booters, needing a tie or win in their last game to clinch the ECC title, dropped a heartbreaking 2-1 decision to Bucknell to finish second in the league with a 3-1-1 mark and 6-5-3 overall.

Frustrations of a season that might have been 13-1 also are revealed in the statistics, as four of the team's five losses were by one goal.

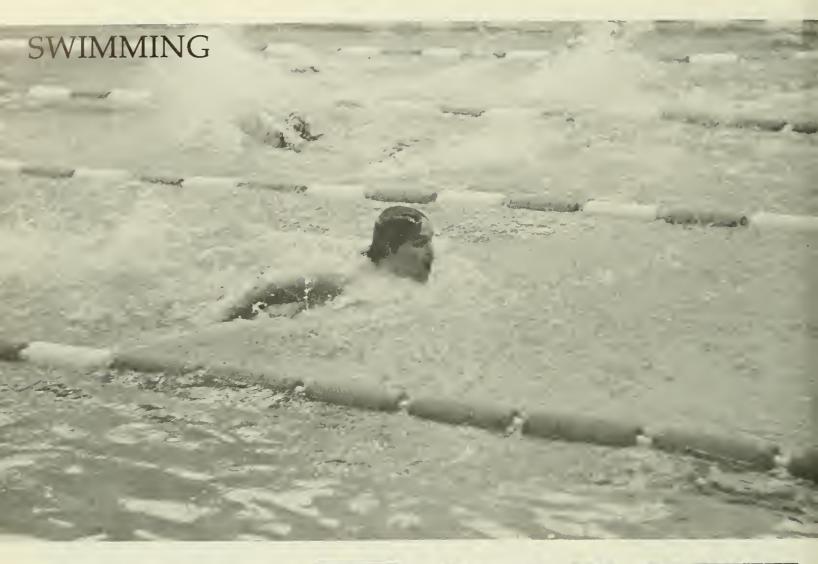

team's five losses were by one goal.
Yet Coach Tom Fleck's troops have much to be proud of this season. Highlighting their efforts was a 1-0 victory over then 18th-ranked Penn.

Individually, senior tri-captain Larry Keller and junior Skip Di Massa led the team. Keller registered four shutouts, including one streak of one goal allowed in four games. Keller permitted an average of 1.42 goals per game. Di Massa provided a seasonal scoring punch of six goals and three assists.

Fullbacks Rich Czekanski, John Schadt, and tricaptain Bob Weick provided outstanding defensive muscle. Although the loss of Keller, Gene Parris, Weick, and midfielders Henry Prati and tricaptain Jose Perna might hurt the team, the steady play this season of freshmen Mike Robinson, right wing, Warren Kimber, left wing, and Andy McIntyre, fullback, will supply the potential for continued

Although illness and pressures kept the swim team from competing up to its capabilities in the ECC championships, the mermen proved their mettle this season. Their 8-3 mark was the best ever under Coach Bruce Gardiner and was the best record since 1950.

and was the best record since 1950.

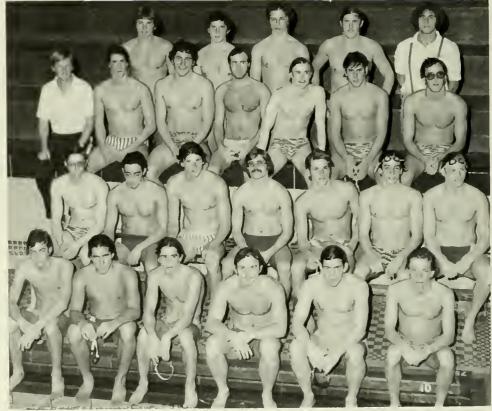

Pressure seemingly did not bother the Engineers during the regular season. Four meets hinged on the final event, the 400 freestyle relay, and the mermen responded by capturing all four of these close contests.

Another season highlight was a 58-54 loss to an overconfident Penn team that had to struggle to win against the tenacious Engineers.

The mermen look in good shape for next year as only John Koester and Fred Woodruff will be graduated. Captain Koester led the record-breaking team pace by capturing five individual records this season.

The band of tough freshmen were led by Jeff Brooks, who came through in the Penn State meet by winning the 1,000 freestyle and by Tom Campbell, who can swim almost any event.

With the addition of a transfer diver next year, the swimmers can hope to climb even higher.

With dreams of a Division III playoff berth rudely shattered, the hockey team awoke to capture its last three games enroute to a fine 11-5 record, its best in several seasons.

The pucksters' Chip and Dale, scoring leaders, co-captains and graduating seniors Bob Oliwa and Mike Dale, provided a powerful scoring punch. Dale won the point race, setting a University record of 127 total points in his four-year career, while winning the seasonal scoring race with 12 goals and 22 assists. Oliwa finished his college career with 70 goals and 54 assists, three total points shy of Dale, and finished with 31 points on the year, with his 22 goals and nine assists.

It is hoped freshman Kris Talgo, who scored 13 goals and 20 assists, can pick up the slack left by the departing seniors.

Although Coach Steve Penman will be losing steady defenseman Whit Cummings, left wing Rich Benoit and defenseman Bob Bayer, the underclassmen will be there to bring continued success. They include freshman goalie Mike Wise, junior center Ed O'Mara, and wing Pete Goldstein.

WRESTLING

It was the same old song — almost. For the third straight year the Engineers took an impressive dual-meet record, 14-3, into the EIWA tournament and made a shambles of it, qualifying eight men for the nationals in Oklahoma. Although the Engineers came home with three placewinners, bad breaks ended all hopes of a national champion.

Placewinning performances by Mark Lieberman, second, Don McCorkel, third, and Mike Brown, fifth, led the wrestling team to a seventh-place NCAA finish with 49 points. Bob Sloand, after a disappointing third place at Easterns, was not finished with the heartbreaks when he was forced to default due to a knee injury. Earlier, Sloand had defeated the number one seed and looked like a sure shot for the title.

At Easterns, again brown and white colors not only dominated the stands, but the victory platform as well. Lance Leonhardt, Lieberman, Brown and McCorkel won their final bouts in convincing manner after the 22nd team championship in history had already been decided.

Pat Sculley lost a hard-fought match in the finals for second, and Steve Bastianelli, Nils Deacon and Sloand took third place honors. McCorkel was awarded the Fletcher Trophy, given to the senior wrestler with the most career points.

Highlighting the season were dual-meet victories over Cal Poly and Navy.

BASKETBALL

Coach Brian Hill's "continual improvement" objective was realized a little faster than expected when the Engineer basketball squad came out of nowhere to qualify for a berth in the East Coast Conference championship tournament.

In the tournament they pushed highly favored — and eventual winner — Hofstra right down to the final minutes before dropping an 81-72 verdict in the ECC quarterfinals.

The Engineers posted a 6-4 conference record and a 12-15 overall mark, the best record for a Lehigh cage team since 1970.

Senior Charley Brown had a consistent year and paced the season scorers with 390 points. He ended his four-year varsity career with 1,311 points, the most ever for an Engineer player. Brown also hauled down 167 rebounds and was the recipient of an Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference weekly all-star certificate.

The backcourt combination of junior Ken Clifford, who scored 331 apoints, and sophomore Bill Griffin, who led the team in assists with 85 and poured in 256 points, gave the Engineers one of the best duo of guards in the conference.

Junior Ray Green topped the rebounders with 202 and was third in scoring with 307 points. Senior Paul Brandenburg followed Green and Brown in the rebounding race with 166.

Two New Jersey freshmen, Jeff Vandemark and Frank Hillman, were instrumental in the upsurge by the cagers. Brown and Brandenburg, the team's cocaptains, were the only seniors among the squad's top seven performers.

Engineer fans should look forward to next year as the Engineers strive to resume the momentum they took into their last game with Hofstra.

INDOOR TRACK

It's the same old story, a fight for love and glory . . . and Lafayette stole the glory and an undefeated season from the Engineers as the annual dogfight between the teams again came down to the final relay races, with Lafayette capturing the mile relay and a 72½-63½ victory.

Coach John Covert's troops ended with a 5-1 record. More important than the record, however, was the individual progress made by the since what Covert called the underpar performances in the home opener, which Bloomsburg never made because of the blizzard.

Miler Stellan Thoren continued his winning ways from cross country as he qualified for the IC4As and scored in that meet with a 4:10.7 mile. Daniel Doyle accompanied Thoren to the IC4As on the strength of his Field House record pole vault 15ft-1½in.

With a bevy of freshman scorers, the team can look to continued excitement and success.

What do the undefeated rifle team and the 3-11 squash team have in common, except their sharing an Epitome page for the second consecutive year?

Both squads will lose very few seniors as freshmen gained valuable experience this year. While the riflemen can only hope to maintain their excellent 25-1 combined two-year record, the squashers come off a building year with hopes of bolstering their record with a tentative New England road swing next season against excellent lvy League teams.

Squash team captain Kevin McCarthy said the season allowed Coach Dennis Schantzenbach to insert many freshmen into the nine-singles lineup while also offering a lot of people a lot of fun.

Despite the team's record, three players went to the Nationals in Annapolis. Although McCarthy, Bob Kirker and freshman standout Ricky Moore all lost in the first round, Moore advanced to the third round of the consolations before being eliminated.

Meanwhile, back at the range, the rifle team breezed through its regular season en route to a first-place finish in the National Rifle Association championship. A squad of Captain Bob Lally, Bob Liebermann, Joe Duffy and Joe Smith triumphed over 25 teams. Lehigh teams also placed sixth and 12th.

Such excellent finishes reveal a depth that will continue next year, as only Lally will graduate. Liebermann had the team's top average in competing in half the matches, and Lally finished second.

The riflewomen, unlike their still-struggling squash counterparts, solidly contributed to team victories. Lynn Loewer and Wendy Smith ranked among the top 10 in team averages, while Nancy Richards, along with Jon Schnabel, had a good freshman season.

Schnabel, had a good freshman season. Who knows? If both teams continue to improve, maybe each will have its own page next year.

The 1977 baseball season should be known as the year that was, and the weekend that was not. Stan Schultz's baseball troops compiled a season record of 19-8-1, which surpasses the previous best win total of 16 accomplished by the 1973 squad. Before 1973, the best record of wins was 15, set in 1916.

The great season came to a heartbreaking conclusion when the Engineers dropped two of their last four games, both to Lafayette, and eliminated themselves from the E.C.C.

Contributing to the record breaking season however, was a successful southern tour during spring vacation in which the Engineers won four of six games and a subsequent sixgame winning streak in early April. Highlights of the year were the double header sweep of Delaware and a win over Temple.

Senior Joe Carroll finished his brilliant career with a .584 slugging average followed by Al Ottinger who hit .459. Pitchers Mitch Smith and Mark Iorio had 12 and 11 wins respective-

LACROSSE

The lacrosse team's 6-6 record is certainly not indicative of how much progress it has made in two years under the guidance of John Luckhardt. With a schedule which includes five nationally-ranked teams, the Engineers averaged in the double figures offensively and lost four very close games.

Highlighting the season were victories over nationally ranked Fairleigh-Dickinson at Madison, Wilkes and Lafayette. The Engineers looked very impressive however, in losing to Bucknell in overtime and nationally-ranked Delaware in the last minute.

Freshman Scott Helgans broke the (modern) scoring record with 38 goals and 20 assists, followed by Chip Von Heill with 22 goals. Roland East, Bruce Crystal and Helgans were voted to the E.C.C. first team.

The Engineers have 13 returning lettermen and should make a strong bid for the conference championship.

Why do the Engineer golf and tennis teams seem to compliment each other?

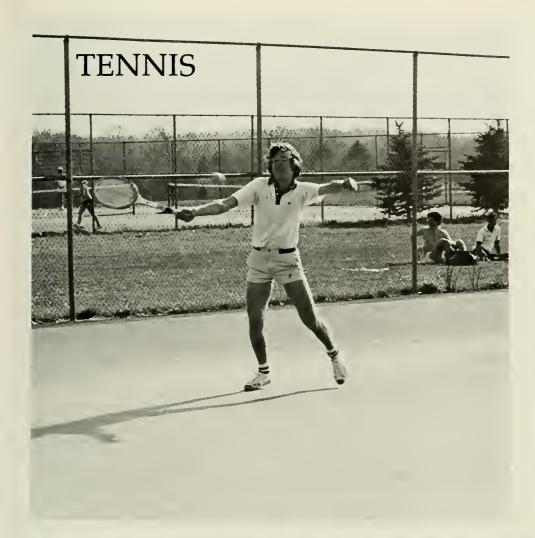

Each year since 1967, as the race for the Lehigh-Lafayette All-Sports Trophy dwindles down to a precious few sporting events, the burden of clinching victory or a tie for the coveted award usually falls upon the duffers or the netmen.

This year the golf team let outright victory in the trophy race slip away as it dropped a heartbreaking 400-402 match to Lafayette in the Engineer regular season finale. The duffers thus left it up to their partners on the tennis courts, who responded with a victory over the Leopards to tie the cup race. (See opposite page).

On the links this season the team recorded a respectable 13-6 log. Post-season efforts, however, found the duffers playing below potential as they finished ninth in the Eastern Intercollegiate Championships. In the East Coast Conference title match the team totaled 807 points to claim fifth behind Delaware's 772 first-place score.

Junior captain Mike Versuk shepherded his team through many close matches this season. For his outstanding efforts he received the Lehigh Trophy as most valuable team member. The many returning veterans again should assure a strong Engineer finish in the trophy race.

A clutch team victory over Lafayette in its season finale and an ECC title for doubles duo Jack Ridge and Jeff Lang highlighted the tennis team's overall 11-6 record and 4-1 ECC log.

The victory for senior Ridge and freshman Lang was the one break through in an overall also — ran day as the team, battling for second behind eventual winner Temple, ended up a close fourth with 18 points behind West Chester, with 23 points, and Bucknell, with 19 points.

Ridge and Lang showed why they rolled up an impressive 16-2 record when they defeated a stubborn West Chester team in the finals. The doubles team of sophomore Bill Siegele and freshman John Speer also fared well, reaching the finals before falling to Bucknell.

A week later the netmen responded to the challenge of finalizing a tie in the 1976-1977 All-Sports Trophy race between Lehigh and Lafayette at six-all by routing the Pards, 8-1. Lehigh now commands an 8-0-3 lead in the trophy series.

Coach Bruce Smith said he was extremely pleased with the season, one of the team's best in many years. With only Ridge graduating, Smith should be experiencing much pleasure in upcoming seasons.

TRACK AND FIELD

"The East Coast Conference Championships: An Irwin Allen Production" should have been the title of the May 6-7 conference meet in Saucon Valley. With a few exceptions, the performance of the Engineer track team was a disaster worthy of the producer of "The Towering Inferno." The tracksters, who should have finished perhaps a close second to winner Bucknell, ended up sixth with 45 points and no individual winners.

The elements of this tragedy lie not totally in meet performances but in a gradual team disintegration because of injury. The sun and fun of the spring trip to Bermuda produced decimation of the sprinting crew via pulled muscles. Although the others recovered for the last few meets of the season, valuable 400-yard relay man Jimmy Dutt, a senior, ran in only one outdoor meet and missed the ECCs.

As the season progressed, the aches and pains mounted. In the distance events, Dennis Sprick pulled muscles in Bermuda and missed the entire season. Dave Rohr ran one race, then could run no more. Halfmiler co-captain Chris Nunan made it to the Penn Relays, before hurt tendons forced him to quit. In the field events, triple jumper Dave Stauffer competed with a tender foot all season. Co-captain javelin thrower John Vargo came up with a sore elbow and shot putter Phil Bosco a sore wrist.

With all the injuries, which forced Coach John Covert to sent a skeletal team to the ECCs, the subpar team performance was almost an anticlimax. Only junior hurdler Jim Kappel, with a second in the 120 highs, and sophomore Jim Davis' 14:19 second-place effort in the three-mile brightened the Engineer day.

The 7-1 regular season, which included a sweet 95-68 romp over Lafayette, had some outstanding performances. Stellan Thoren ran a 4:06.7 mile. Freshman Andy Hubsch raced a 1:51 800-meter en route to the team's second-place finish in the college division of the Penn Relays 3,200-meter relay. Vargo threw the javelin 227 feet, a new school record, and Dan Doyle vaulted 15-6, also a new school record.

VICTIMS TO VICTORS IN FIVE YEARS

"We used to be 'jockettes.' Now we're jocks like everyone else." Judy Manns, '75.

After five years of coeducation, perhaps the most visible area of integration has been athletics. Through the efforts of many, both on and off the field, the Engineers have advanced from winless club teams four years ago to undefeated varsity teams and recognition as easiern powers in several sports.

Women such as Judy Manns, one of the "original coeds," provided a foundation for future growth. She spent "90 per cent of (her) freshman year in Steck's office, bitching because there was nothing to do." Once the teams were started, though, not everyone took them seriously. "The first time I wore my varsity jacket on campus," Manns recalled, "Everyone kept asking me 'what sport did your boyfriend letter in?"

In 1972, Helen Bond was hired to coach field hockey, swimming and tennis. Competing on a club level, the Engineers lost more than they won, but even the fact that they were competing was an achievement in itself.

In 1973, the three sports were elevated to varsity status. Tennis led the field at 3-3.

1. We did it! Sue Sachs' gesture after the win over Lafayette sums up the undefeated '75 hockey season. Joining in the celebration are (I to r) Jeanne Bonney '78, coach Helen Bond, Trudi Schifter '79, Sue Robinson '78, Stacy Stacom '79, Barb Ewing '76, Jane Love and Carol Hart, both '78. Sachs, '77, went on to greater fame as m.v.p. of the 1976 basketball team and three-time co-captain in basketball. Bonney was co-captain of the 1975 lacrosse team

2. Marcie Reuben '78 follows through on a spike in a 1975 win over Moravian. She served as co-captain of the first team.

3. A loose ball draws a crowd in the first home lacrosse match, 1975. Dispelling the "first year 2 teams aren't supposed to win" myth, the Engineers were 5-1. Giving chase are (1 to r in plaid kilts) Lori Collmann '78, Ann McGregor '76 (3rd 3 from left), Judy Manns '75 and Karen Sam '76. Collmann holds scoring records in three sports. At the 1976 Flagpole Day, she won m.v.p. awards in field jockey and lacrosse and received the Mary O. Hurley award as Lehigh's best woman athlete. In addition, she was co-captain of the 1976 and '77 field hockey teams and the 1976 and '77 lacrosse teams. Manns received the Hurley award in 1975. She co-captained the 1972, '73 and '74 field hockey teams and the '75 lacrosse team. McGregor co-captained the undefeated '75 field hockey team.

The 1974-75 academic year brought a tremendous change in the character of the athletic program. Three new sports, volleyball, basketball, and lacrosse, all coached by Barbara Lipkin, were introduced. In addition, three Lehigh teams finished with winning records.

The field hockey team was 5-3, with several freshmen pacing the scoring and defense. Lori Collmann was the Engineers' leading scorer, while Carol Hart and Cheryl Kolp were defensive mainstays. Volleyball, however, provided a less than pleasant welcome for Lipkin; the squad lost all five matches. The powderpuff team annihilated Lafayette 46-0. Pam Watson and Collmann set single-game passing and scoring records which surpassed those held by Kim McQuilken and Jack Rizzo.

The first women's basketball team experienced its share of growing pains. The Engineers' 2-5 record should have included a frustration allowance for games which slipped away in the final minutes. Inexperience and injuries were the team's downfall, though freshman Sue Woytkewicz singlehandedly kept Lehigh in some contests.

The swimming team still came up short of a winning season, despite record-setting efforts from freshmen Maureen Madden and Mary lane Haesche and senior Ginny Thompson.

Jane Haesche and senior Ginny Thompson.

By the spring of 1975, Barbara Lipkin must have wondered if she'd ever have a winning team. Many of the women on her lacrosse squad had never played the sport before, but they formed a unit good enough to post a 5-1 record. Collmann and Manns paced the offense with 11 goals apiece, while freshmen Jeanne Bonney and "Doc" Gable played tough defense.

The tennis team led all Lehigh athletes by going undefeated in eight matches. They were the first women to have a perfect season, and achieved their record on the strength of superior singles play from freshman Patty Handwerk, senior Wendy Brower and sophomore Pat "The Hat" Henry, as well as strong efforts in doubles from Lynn Lasser, Kathy Murphy, Ginger Wisham and Pam Watson.

The field hockey team surprised everyone by beating all 10 opponents and earning a trip to Eastern regionals. The scoring statistics speak for themselves: Lehigh 42, Opponents 5. Collmann scored 16 goals to set a new team record, and set another mark (shared by Janet LeClair) by netting five in one game. The defense was no less awesome.

4. Patty Handwerk '78 exhibits perfect form on her forehand. She was m.v.p. of the undefeated 1975 squad. In two years of singles competition, her singles record was 13-3. Uncanny anticipation and delicate placements are her greatest strengths as a player.

5. Maureen Madden '78 at speed. "Mo" was m.v.p. of the 1975 and '76 swim teams, and established new records in butterfly and freestyle. She co-captained the '76 and '77 teams.

6. Lori Collmann '78 on the way to one of five touchdowns in the 1974 powderpuff game vs. Lafayette. Collmann's 30 points broke the old record (25) set by Lehigh and New York Giant halfback Jack Rizzo. She received the game ball for her touchdown spree.

In several games, the Engineers allowed no shots on goal.

The volleyball team skyrocketed from 0-5 to 5-2 on strong efforts from freshman lrene Pavels and junior Andi Gorbach. Basketball's fortunes also improved, and the Engineers finished 6-4. Co-captains Sue Sachs and Sue Woytkewicz provided inside and outside scoring threats, while freshman Patty Garnish provided strength at guard.

The swim team had the dubious distinction of being the only losing women's team despite a good showing by Madden, Haesche and freshman Carol Zetterstrom.

The spring brought another undefeated tennis team. The women rolled to their second straight 8-0 record with the help of freshmen Andie Altman, Mimi McLennan and Allison Steele, as well as Handwerk, Henry, Lasser and Murphy. Lacrosse finished 7-1, with another record-setting performance by Coll man. The sophomore co-captain scored 38 goals, including seven in one game.

Another new sport, softball, compiled a winning record in club competition, with varsity status for this year.

There has been much more to the development of the sports program than wins, losses and points scored. The women's tremendous desire to succeed and grow has been the spark for many accomplishments. The spirit and camaraderie among the athletes has been one of the greatest benefits of the program. The common ground of athletics extends beyond the playing field in many instances. For many women athletes, the best place to discuss the day's game was usually at a table in Smugglers' or Manny's.

The growth of women's athletics has led to new questions to be answered. The women have the talent and potential to be powers in several sports. But is that the goal toward which the program shoud be oriented? It is a question of priorities which will doubtless take some time to resolve.

Women at Lehigh used to be ogled as they walked to class. Now people are watching them on the field, with good reason. It's all part of the jock's world at Lehigh, a world no one could have envisioned five years ago.

1. Carol Hart '78 catches Bloomsburg's goalie flat-flooted. Hart was a tri-captain of the 1976 team. Her aggressive play at midfield was a key to the Engineers' success in field hockey. 2. Cheryl Kolp '78 grabs for a rebound against Lafayette. Kolp's work on the boards was an asset in both the good years ('76) and the bad ('75). She was co-captain of the '76 and '77 lacrosse team and the '75 and '76 field hockey teams, while maintaining the highest average in the Business College.

FOOTBALL

Top down (I to r): C. Delia, P. Latz, M. Fener, L. Weissman, D. Moorehead, S. Hall, L. Eckert, J. Harris, K. Berry, M. McCoy, J. Crouse, D. Campbell, J. Ochs, L. Melillo, L. Collmann, S. McGovern, J. Smith, T. Rauch, P. Zaimes, S. McAuley, V. Commisa (coaches), H. Richardson (co-capt), R. Welliver (co-capt).

The powderpuff football team came out on the short end of a defensive battle with Lafayette, losing 6-0.

The Engineer defense broke down only once, despite being on the field most of the afternoon. Free safety Doris Campbell and linebackers Lisa Melillo and Terri Rauch overcame injuries to turn in superb performances. The Pards' passing game was cut off by aggressive coverage by Campbell and cornerbacks Jocelyn Ochs and co-captain Rosie Welliver. Ends Lou Ann Eckert and Melanie McCoy also played well.

Offensively, the Engineers were inconsistent. One drive was ruined by a penalty which was called, while a last-second attack was stalled by one which wasn't. The gains came mostly on short passes from co-captain Helen Richardson to split end Lori Collmann and tight ends Andie Altman and Lauren Weissman. Halfbacks JoAnne Harris and Beeb Crouse were also offensive threats, Harris by air and Crouse by land.

Although the Engineers will be losing Richardson, Welliver, safety Mindy Fener, guard Dee Sultzer and end Sue McGovern to graduation, the team can be counted on to put more points on the board in the future.

FIELD HOCKEY

What do you get when you take the pressure of last year's undefeated season and add tougher opponents? Frustration. The Engineer field hockey team saw no end to it, struggling to a disappointing 4-4-2 record.

Several of the women had fine seasons. Tri-captain Lori Collmann led the team in scoring for the third straight year. Midfielders Cheri Novak and tricaptain Carol Hart played strong defense, as did backs Andie Altman, and Nancy Barrett. Trudi Schifter's aggressive goaltending was one of the team's greatest strengths.

In the Eastern Regionals, the Engineers put up a good fight before losing to Lock Haven, the #3 team in the country. Another year's experience should help bring back the winning attitudes and better times.

VOLLEYBALL

The Engineer volleyball team came into its own this year, posting a 9-1 record and sweeping a tournament.

The team's strengths were evident in every match. A high serving percentage, consistent setting and powerful spiking constantly put the Engineers in the lead.

Co-captains Irene Pavels and Andi Gorbach were the sparkplugs for Lehigh. Pavels' excellent all-around play and Gorbach's serves and spikes were instrumental, as were the spiking of Sue Sachs and Heather Hall and the setting of Meg Allen, Kathy Benusa and Laura Moore.

The Engineers' only loss came at the hands of Mansfield State, an Eastern power. They won their division in the Philadelphia Invitational Tournament, rolling over four opponents. The squad also scored its first win over Kutztown this season. The j.v. team was also successful, with a 6-1 mark. The Engineers seem to be headed for an undefeated season in the foreseeable future.

Row 1 (l to r): A. Lynch (head coach), C. Webster, N. Barrett, P. Garnish, K. Benusa, J. Wadsworth, M. Krafty; Row 2: L. Kaufman, K. Lelinski, C. Novak, M. Mark; Row 3: S. Woytkewicz, S. Sachs (co-capts.); Missing: A. Altman, S. Beltz, L. Konigsberg, J. Dykehouse (asst. coach).

In order to succeed, a team must have talent, good coaching and intense desire. The women's basketball team had all three, and turned them into an 11-6 season, highlighted by a 5th-place finish in the EAIAW Invitational.

Each player chipped in with points, assists and defense. Freshman Karen Lelinski was the team's leading rebounder with 197, and fought her way inside for points. Cheri Novak, another freshman, combined excellent shooting skills with physical defense. Sophomore playmaker Patty Garnish led the team in assists, with 95, and saved several games with her coolness under pressure. Sophomore Celia Webster's inside game and touch from the foul line made her the Engineers' leading scorer, with 217 points and a 12.8 average. Junior co-captain Sue Woytkewicz played tough defense and loosened up opposing zones with her outside shot. Senior co-captain Sue Sachs crashed both boards, canned shots from all over, and finally reached her potential as a player. Her contributions as a player and a leader will be greatly missed.

The Engineers boasted several women who made things happen when they came off the bench. Kathy Benusa, a husting guard with a team-leading 52% field goal percentage, Andie Altman, a versatile swing forward, and Leslie Konigsberg, a power forward, along with defensive stalwarts Nancy Barrett and Sharon Beltz led the reserves. Mitz Krafty, Lori Kaufman, Mardi Mark and Jeannie Wadsworth also saw considerable playing time and performed well.

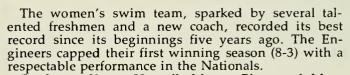

Lehigh's strategy depended on high-percentage shots and a variety of stingy defenses. They were masterminded, driven and motivated by first-year coach Annette Lynch. The Engineers show signs of becoming an Eastern powerhouse in the next few years.

SWIMMING

Freshmen Karen Hespell, Megan Blust and Mary Weis were the key to many victories. Hespell set several new records in freestyle and butterfly, and finished sixteenth in the Nationals in the 100-yard freestyle. Blust excelled in butterfly and breaststroke. Weis was a strong freestyle and butterflyer. The trio, along with junior co-captain Maureen "Mo" Madden, consistently swam well in the relay events.

consistently swam well in the relay events.

Sophomore co-captain Carol Zetterstrom had a good season in freestyle, especially in the distance events. Her younger sister Doris also showed potential as a distance swimmer. Sophomore Christie Davidson earned the Engineers points in backstroke. Senior Carol Meyer, competing in her first (and last) varsity season, was a consistent placewinner in breaststroke. The divers, junior Mary Jane Haesche and freshman Sue Stoup, both had excellent years. Haesche reaped the benefits of this year's inclusion of the three-meter event, winning it several times.

First-year coach Joan Peto instilled confidence and technique in her squad. With only Meyer graduating, Peto has a strong base for more winning years.

Row 1 (1 to r): S. Stoup, M. Blust, N. Hittinger, K. Hespell, C. Zetterstrom (co-capt.), M. Weis, M. Madden (co-capt.), L. Clark; Row 2: M.J. Haesche, D. Zetterstrom, K. Tate, C. Davidson, A. Gaydos, C. Meyer.

What should have been the lacrosse team's best season yet turned out to be its worst. Injuries devastated the Engineers, paving the way for a disappointing 3-5 record.

The season began with two runaway wins, one over highly-touted Trenton State. Things turned sour against Lafayette when, in the space of five minutes, freshman Cheri Novak broke her leg and freshman Tara Stacom was knocked unconscious. Novak was lost for the season, and Stacom saw limited action for the remainder of the campaign, though she did have 13 goals and 6 assists.

Junior co-captain Lori Collmann led the attack, saving her best efforts for pressure situations. She was leading scorer with 24 goals, giving her 78 in three years and handed out 8 assists, also a team high. Sophomore "Wiz" King's shooting skills gave her 22 scores.

Defensively, junior co-captain Cheryl Kolp had her best year yet. She stood her ground well around the goal, despite an injured knee. Freshman Ann Gaydos was a welcome addition at defense wing with her strong checking. Sophomore Kathy Benusa shadowed opponents well on the opposite wing.

Center Mindy Fener is the only graduating player. With a healthy attack and a more consistent defense, the Engineers should get back on track soon.

TENNIS

It had to happen sometime. The Engineer tennis team's winning streak (20 matches over three seasons) ended this year, but the women's 7-2 record was still a good one record was still a good one.

Junior Patty Handwerk had yet another fine season at first singles, dropping only one match. Sophomore co-captain Andie Altman ran her record to 17-0 over two years at second singles. Freshman Lauren Weissman showed good potential at third singles.

Senior co-captain Pat "The Hat" Henry and sophomore Allison Steele compiled a 5-2 mark at first doubles. Junior Lynn Lasser and sophomore Lori Kaufman were a winning combination at second doubles.

The tougher schedule faced by this year's team was a mixed blessing. Two new additions to the schedule, Ursinus and Bucknell, won narrow victories over the Engineers, but the stiffer competition was a welcome challenge.

tion was a welcome challenge.

The Engineers will lose Henry, a four-year starter, to graduation, but still have a strong foundation on which to build another long winning streak.

The Engineer softball team made its debut in winning style, combining explosive offense with heads-up defense and good pitching for a 7-2 record.

There wasn't an easy out in Lehigh's lineup. Beeb Crouse hit .500 and stole 4 bases, and played consistent defense at second base. Shortstop Sue Woytkewicz led the Engineers in on base percentage and saved her best defensive efforts for tough plays.

The middle of the order was a veritable Murderers' Row. Karen Lelinski (.394, 2 h.r., 12 rbi) came through best in the clutch and was a defensive mainstay at first base. Sue Sachs' awesome power at the plate (.455, 2 triples, 9 rbi) matched her acrobatics in center field. Right fielder Helen Richardson was a long ball threat every time up. She hit .538, led the team in runs batted in with 25, in triples with 5, and in total bases. She played errorless defense.

The Engineers boasted a strong pitching staff, anchored by Maryann Waszkiewicz. The freshman hurler went 18 innings without giving up an earned run, threw a shutout and helped her own cause by hitting a team high .571 and knocking in 18 runs. B.K. Pisano showed great promise with a variety of pitches and a consistent bat. Toni Leitgeb, who saw action at both ends of the battery, was 2-0 as a pitcher and set a single-game record with 10 rbi.

Lisa Melillo was a tower of strength at third base with her quick reflexes and accurate arm. Karen Yocum kept on improving behind the plate as the season progressed. Terri Rauch bolstered the defense in left field, and swung a mean bat (.407, 10 rbi).

Graduation will take its toll on the team. Rose Welliver, one of the team's founders, catcher Pat Gedney, Sachs and Richardson will be tough to replace, but the Engineers have enough talent left over for many more super seasons.

INTRAMURALS

As you already know there was nothing compulsory about the Intramural Sports and Recreation program. You could join us or leave us as you pleased, however we had something for you if you allowed yourself to try it. We were there to serve you and help you. The program offered was designed to cover a wide range of activity for your leisure time. We sincerely encouraged you whenever we had an opportunity to take advantage of both the program and the facilities. The fun and serious moments seem to stand out sharply, especially the things you liked to do best. Continue to have fun doing the things you like to do best. Keep sharp and physically active as you enjoy new and exciting experiences. Take it easy — but do it! Keep physically active and mentally alert! Start now to enjoy the days ahead by spending some of your time remembering us. Hopefully we soon can look up and there you are; a '77 straight from heaven. — Best Wishes, "Steck"

HOW WE LIVE

"And tell me, what have you in these houses? And what is it you guard with fastened doors? Have you peace, the quiet urge that reveals your power? Have you remembrances, the glimmering arches that span the summits of the mind? Have you beauty, that leads the heart from things fashioned of wood and stone to the holy mountain? Tell me, have you these in your houses?"

— Gibran

LEARNING TO

- THURSDAY 4 P.M.: Struggling through 4 o'clock hourly; counting seconds to 9 p.m. pub night (18,000, and counting . . .)
- THURSDAY 8 P.M.: Select wardrobe for party; shoulder pads for getting to the bar, water (beer?) proof shoes . . . and socks and pants and hair. Expect to come out perfumed like all the rest: Eau De Biere.
- THURSDAY 9 P.M.: Plot route on hill. Do not drive. Assume (correctly) that everyone else on the road is roaring drunk. Remember, the shortest distance between two points often includes FIJI.
- THURSDAY 10 P.M.: Hot to trot especially to the bathroom after six beers. Men: be sure to ask date's age. She may be from Broughal Junior High. Women: be sure to ask date's affiliation. He may be from FIJI.
- THURSDAY 11 P.M.: Swim back to bar for 17th beer. Your belch is recorded at 6.3 on the Richter scale. Comment to date on intimate atmosphere of party. Date replies, "Your foot is in my navel."
- FRIDAY 1:30 A.M.: Set alarm for 9 a.m. class. Proceed to bathroom.
- FRIDAY 1:45 A.M.: Return from bathroom and reset alarm for Sunday.
- FRIDAY 3:59 P.M.: RALLY! Back to the hill for Happy Hours. See Lehigh administrators for the first time. Watch faculty become progressively more "informal." Weak drinks wear off fast get psyched for grain parties.
- FRIDAY 8:30 P.M.: Mix grain punch. Heavy on grain, light on mixer, heavy on punch!
- FRIDAY 11 P.M.: Serve grain punch. Reason for delay: grain parties do not last long. Grain goes down fast and so do even the heartiest drinkers.

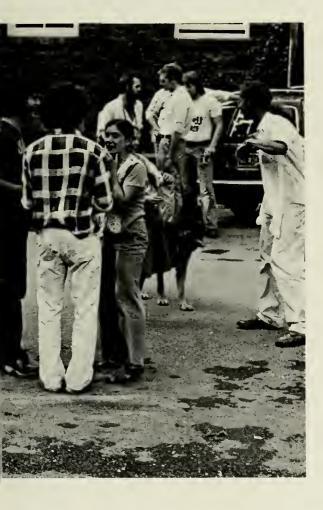

OUTDOOR

PARTY HEARTY

FRIDAY MIDNIGHT: Would you go for Greekers after grain? Not if you're smart. Combination causes spontaneous combustion. See you at St. Luke's. Recommended remedy: beer and bromo.

SATURDAY 6 A.M.: Sunrise cocktail party. Watch the sun rise along with your blood alcohol level as your body sets.

SATURDAY 7:30 A.M.: A good samaritan returns you to your bed after finding you embracing a lamppost in Phi Delt's parking lot. Avoid all stairs en route home.

SATURDAY 3 P.M.: Variety is the spice of life. Bring out the bong. Marvel at engineering student's senior project: an eight-passenger hookah. Smoking makes you thirsty and quaaludes make you horny so . . .

SATURDAY 9 P.M.: Off to social suicide, which masquerades at Lehigh in the form of band parties. Drink beers two at a time to save trips. Attempts to scratch your back get you arrested for indecent assault. The band is the warm-up group for the ARCHIES and knows only three songs: "Play That Funky Music," "Taking Care of Business," and "Suffragette City."

SATURDAY MIDNIGHT: Venture to a midnight grain party where the grain expired at 11:45 p.m. So you decide to forsake the mayhem of the hill for the quiet conversation at Uncle Manny's Saloon.

SUNDAY NOON: You pass up church because you saw God in the Drinker parking lot earlier this morning. You substitute Alka Seltzer for alcohol and strain to remember three cures for a hangover: 1) sweat it out; 2) sleep it off; 3) throw it up. Opt for number 2 and see you next Thursday.

Meeting after meeting. Who will win the wine? No, Bayne, not the secret knock, pledges aren't sisters yet! Where is the mystery sister? And who got arrested? G-L-O-R-I-A. Pam's a pledge — no, she's a sister. No, Martha, you don't ram your car against a tree to park it. Rent a Phi for a Fee! . . . Slave for a Day. Melega's aching. Who showered with a turtle? How about Lemon Pledge(s)? Mother Superior, oops, I mean . . . Lusty girl, your pin . . . Take your man around the corner . . . Would you believe Carol Baynette, Marsha Streisand, Ms. Slimy Slike, Idle Brain Booruilji? Dues, dues, dues, and more dues. How much do I owe, Barb? Alpha Phi Helping Hearts. Ann: Well, guys, intramural marbles was yesterday — we missed that one. Program night: Rape, anyone? Maybe breast cancer? The Phi Feud. Then we have Lilies of the Mountain. And, who is Martha Foote Crow? ROLE CALL: Merlin, Sotz, Nashe, Mama Murph, Sugar Magnolia. Where's Julie's whip? "A move to postpone last week's postponed motion to next week." Okay, who wants to have a party with . . . Raw eggs and water balloons. Who pulls all nighters every night and has eighteen labs due each week? G-L-O-R-I-A. It's only pretend, Violet — NOSE BLEED! Hey, Robin, what did you steal from Phi Kap this time? Jane Clarke: Let's play softball in a white skirt — and don't forget the nylons! Martha: We have plenty of gas! We have plenty of gas! Next scene: PUSH, PAULETTE! PUSH, CHARLOTTE! Gail found an advantage in getting kidnapped: getting smashed out of her mind! What is large and metal with ice surrounding it, sits in the bathtub, and is full of beer? What ever happened to Mother Nature? Will Betsy Fenik pledge Phi? Why are you carrying those teddy bears? FEAR OF FLYING. Doylestown, anyone? Hitching from Lamberton to Thornburg. GREEKERS — KIM. Would you believe Greeker eating practice. KIM — GREEKERS. Okay, Sue, no ulcers allowed during rush! Nice devotion, Sally. Ms. Lee got SPIRIT! Then there's the hoe. Who's going to MANNIES? Who's got the CCOM? Who's got the BMOC?? And, good luck to our departing seniors, Jane, Gail, Robin, Bayne, Maryann, and Sally.

DELTA SIGMA PHI

Delta Tau Delta is a unique fraternity at Lehigh. The brothers here downplay the traditional fraternity brotherhood ideal for their own model, one based purely on friendship rather than seniority. We believe our system is the best because of the fine people that graduate from Lehigh as Delts.

The Delts are very active in the university community and won the overall Greek Week trophy in 1977. No fraternity at Lehigh can boast the fine combination of scholars and athletes that the Delts can. Our tradition is different, but we feel it is something special.

Pi Kappa Alpha was founded on March 1, 1868 at the University of Virginia. The fraternity grew throughout the south until 1909, when its growth pushed northward. The Lehigh chapter of "PIKE" was established as a local fraternity in 1922 and later obtained recognition as a national fraternity on October 26, 1929.

More important than the facts and figures about Pi Kappa Alpha, are the brothers. We are banded together ". . . for the establishment of friendship on a firmer and more lasting basis; for the promotion of brotherly love and kind feeling; for the mutual benefit and advancement of the interests of those with whom we sympathize and deem worthy of our regard . . ." These ideas are reinforced in day to day life; whether studying, partying, or just bumming around. The experiences we encountered sometimes good, sometimes bad, brought us together; and I think each of us is the better for experiencing them together.

This section of the yearbook is dedicated to the Senior Brothers of Zeta Psi Fraternity. The past four years have been exciting and fullfilling for our Seniors. They have helped build a reputation for academic achievement, intramural participation, and successful social activities.

The Seniors have also provided the necessary leadership to build an active house of Brothers with diverse personalities and interests. Our rush program was very successful with a group of 18 active pledges. We are confident that our new pledge class will work hard to maintain the quality and tradition of Zeta Psi.

The names of Jackbird, Molka, Frenchy, Disco, and Coach will not be forgotten. We hope that the Seniors will return to the house and visit the "Lounge" for another 7:30 Room Jam. Best of luck to our new alumni and remember its "Great to be a Zete."

A SENSE OF BETHLEHEM

"There is no there there." To most observers, Gertrude Stein's description of Oakland might well apply to Bethlehem. Beyond the environs of Lehigh, however, lies a city with a rich religious and cultural heritage. Bethlehem, founded Christmas Eve, 1741 by the Moravians, still retains their influence in many respects. The reverent celebration of Christmas (and its commercial potential) gives rise to the "Christmas City" image. The flat gravestones in the cemetaries emphasize the idea that all men are equal in the sight of God.

The industrial side of the city is obvious. The skyline is dominated by the mills and offices of Bethlehem Steel, as well as by the clouds of steam belched from the smokestacks. Though the city was incorporated from two separate towns (Bethelehem and South Bethlehem), some residents would not be easily convinced that there is unity today. The contrast of North and South Sides is remarkable. One goes from Desolation Row to the re-creation of revolutionary America. Such a contrast is the most noticeable aspect of Bethlehem.

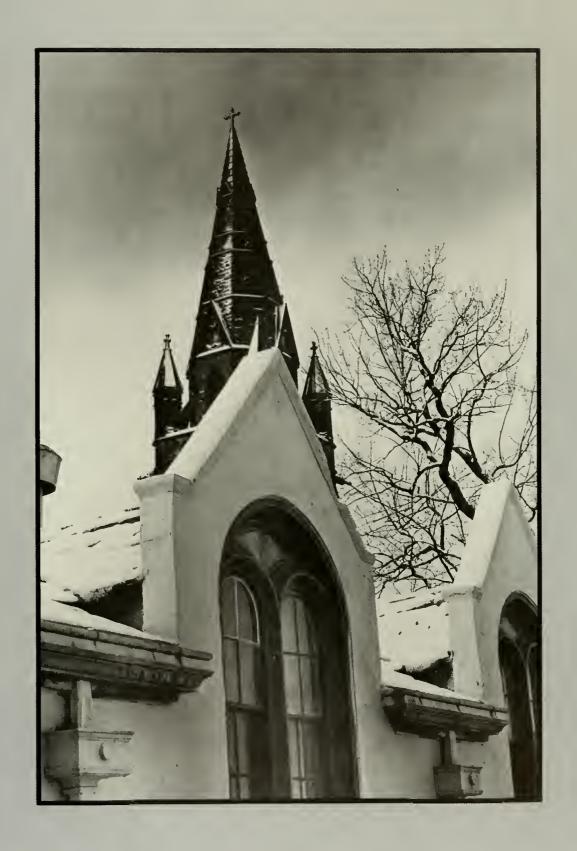

Four years at Lehigh have amply shown that a sense of Bethlehem is difficult to come by, if we search for a single theme, for the only common thread of the city is its diversity.

How They Live:

To take something that no one else wants; to see past the ugliness to the beauty that is there and to leave it a little better, a little more beautiful, is an ambitious philosophy of life. But Peter Beidler, professor of English, does not just pay lip service to this philosophy, he lives it.

He and his family live in a 200-year-old grist mill about ten miles from campus, that he and his wife Ann purchased when they were graduate students at Lehigh in 1963. For $3,000 they acquired four stone walls and a foundation. The roof had caved in completely and the floor was covered with weeds, Beidler says.

The Beidlers lived in a two-room apartment near campus while they worked on making their "shambles" habitable.

Beidler and his wife did much of the work on the house themselves.

"Every place you live in must somehow be made your own. So many people never take advantage of their surroundings," Beidler says. His own house contains some hand-made furniture and interesting antiques. The panelled walls are draped with Indian tapestries, souvenirs from a trip to Arizona several years ago. They've left the mill's water wheel intact and a spring still floods the basement in the gristing area. A trout occasionally manages to find its way into the basement.

Beidler has carried over his unique perspective on life to his teaching career at Lehigh. Shunning routine, he has created courses which reflect his own personal interests.

English 198, "Self-reliance in a Technical Society," created by Beidler, is an example of his different approach to teaching. The students enrolled in the course formed a corporation, purchased a house near campus, completely remodeled it and then sold it. The physical side of the course was balanced by the required reading of five books on the topic of self-reliance. Thoreau's Walden was the basic "text."

"The course was a once-in-a-lifetime chance. I like to read books and to teach. The challenge of the course was to bring together the intellectual and the physical," Beidler states.

THE HOUSE THAT BEIDLER BUILT

Although the course was a success, "I don't know if I'd like to do it again because it might become routine," Beidler says. The course was offered during the 1975-76 school year.

Even though his area of expertise is Chaucer, Beidler also has a deep interest in the American Indian and his literature. In 1973, he was granted a National Endowment for the Humanities Postdoctoral Fellowship to study American Indian literature, history, society and culture at the University of Arizona. He has been granted a leave of absence for the 1977-78 academic year to pursue this interest

"Everyplace you live must somehow be made your own."

even further. He and his family hope to live on a reservation this time.

"We would like to live in a traditional Indian home — that's the best way to learn about a culture," he says.

Another way to learn about a culture is through its literature. Beidler has studied Indian literature and also taught several courses on the American Indian, including a freshman seminar.

"Literature is a means of getting one person close to another person without actually having physical contact. It is through literature that we learn how another person lives and loves."

Beidler plans to write a novel during his leave of absence. The novel probably will be about the American Indian, he says.

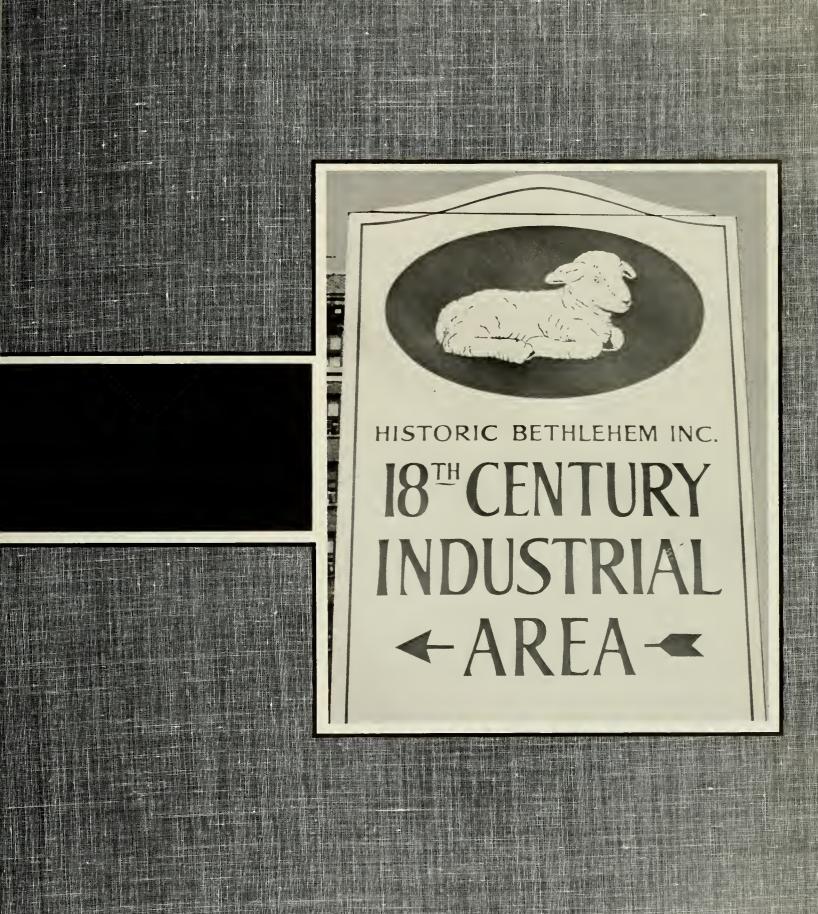

After years of "teaching and evaluating other people's writing, now it's time to reach into myself. Writing the novel is something I have to do. I'm probably in for disappointment. But I've got to do it — I've got to try it."

"Not many things are worth doing for a lifetime," he says. For Beidler, the teacher, the carpenter the student "life is a process of dis

Architect's rendering of Lehigh's planned $3.5 million dollar "Athletic and Convocation Center."

The Lehigh University board of trustees has approved plans to erect a $3.5 million, 6,000-seat "Athletic and Convocation Center," announced Harold S. Mohler, president of the Lehigh trustees, and chairman of the board of Hershey Foods Corp.

One of the announced goals of Lehigh's "new Century Fund, the planned arena will be constructed on a site in Saucon Valley.

The "Athletic and Convocation Center" (ACC) will be used for commencement exercises, concerts and theatrical productions, alumni reunions, major lectures and conferences, spectator sports, (particularly wrestling and basketball, and other events. The facility will also be made available for major non-Lehigh programs.

Plans for the ACC call for a 95,000-square foot spectator area that includes a regulation basketball court and a surface that can accommodate four wrestling mats.

Permanent seating will be 6,000 armed-chair seats, including 2,000 rollaway seats at floor level, with 6,500 for in-the-round stage events. Capacity for basketball games will be 4,000 and the full 6,000 for one-mat wrestling meets.

Also included will be a 20,000-square foot lobby and guest passageway areas, a portable stage, some special rooms, and a storage area. Lighting will accommodate color television productions, and special areas will be made available for media representatives. Parking facilities will also be constructed adjacent to the new building.

Architect's rendering of the interior of Lehigh's planned $3.5 million dollar "Athletic and Convocation Center" set up for commencement exercises.

SPECIFICATIONS

This book and cover were printed by offset lithography by the little Southern elves of Hunter Publishing Co., Winston-Salem, North Carolina. The paper used is #80 Warren's Cameo Dull Enamel. The predominant typestyle is Palatino and Palatino ltalic (got it, staff?). The photographs are primarily the work of University students. Some team photos are by Ryan Studios, Bethlehem. The senior portraits and some group photos are by Merin Studios, Philadelphia. The cover artwork was created by Diane Rissinger.

Sixteen months ago a small thin kid with glasses asked me if I would like to be Business Manager of the Epitome. First of all, I didn't even know how to pronounce the name of the yearbook correctly. Second, the thought of being Business Manager of anything was absurd. For someone who had to take Accounting three times the notion that I had to be responsible for real money was inconceivable. I mean what little I did know about the yearbook, I knew it used real money. But somehow I was able to persevere through an audit from a C.P.A. firm that I was sure would catch all my mistakes. They did catch all my mistakes but fortunately they didn't prosecute. Many times I walked out of that office in a daze tired of going over lists of seniors that hadn't paid in full. But whenever the problem reached an acute stage I could always look on my wall and reread a letter from someone named Alan Kaminsky. The gist of the letter stage I could always look on my wall and reread a letter from someone named Alan Kaminsky. The gist of the letter was that I was something just to the right of a tax collector for the IRS who tried to pry money from the Lehigh student body for something called The Epitome. Alan might just have been right — but I did it better than anyone else could have - Bob Judson.

When I began this job 14 months ago, I knew what I was getting into, but everyone is entitled to one gross error in judgment. Throughout last summer, the WATS lines in Ann's and my offices got a workout, and my friends in Philadelphia (and Gladwyne) saw more of me than they bargained for.

Despite our confidence that half the book would be finished by Christmas, Ann and I stumbled into May with most of the book remaining, asking ourselves where the time

I will always think of this book as a collection of layout forms and copy sheets, but it means much more to me than that. One seldom has the chance to produce something which will endure, and I hope the book is worthy of such attention.

It was sometimes difficult to keep things in perspective while trying to juggle my studies, two sports and the book, and I was not always successful. But there were many people in my corner all the way, and I thank them. My friends listened to my running commentary on the book's development and tolerated my dirty looks (and worse) when they asked how it was progressing. My parents encouraged me and offered all their support (financial and otherwise), and I can never thank them adequately. And to one friend who said "You're working on that damn book? Again? Still?" I promise you we'll get re-acquainted soon.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

It seems hard to believe that fourteen months ago I did not know a layout sheet from a scratch sheet. But one thing quickly became apparent - you are taking a gamble when you deal with either of them.

As yearbook editor you are convinced you are always losing, (your sanity for instance), but you inevitably come out a winner. For the most part the rewards are intangible but valuable, nonetheless. The returns come in the form of special friendships born out of camaraderie and collective creativity, not to mention the attainment of a certain selfknowledge.

You are afforded the chance to see the best and worst of your character unfold when you immerse yourself in a total commitment especially a commitment to quality which I hope was realized in the preceding pages.
You make mistakes and you make enemies.

You put your creativity and tolerance to a test and you develop new levels of patience and awareness. But above all you learn to respect the energy, dedication, and talent of all those who helped produce a yearbook.

I can't help expressing my gratitude to those people who unknowingly made significant contributions to this book. Those people are my friends and family who were always there in full support when the going got tough and the tough got weak, sick, and frustrated. Their love was constant inspiration and I thank them.

Ann Ricki Zimmerman

Despite all the times we thought this was a lonely job, we had a great deal of capable help. Just how great a deal and how capable will be evident in the following paragraph. We'll be forever grateful to those mentioned below.

Bob Judson kept us sane and solvent; his sense of humor was a blessing when we lost ours. Jud made us appreciate the difficulty of a business manager's job by doing it very well. Steve Merin, our publisher's rep, calmed Ann's nerves, caught our mistakes, and saved us from financial ruin on author's corrections. Hunter is lucky to have him, as were we, whenever we needed him (which was often). Marc Hulsman, our photo editor, endured the likes of Frank Hook, uncooperative groups, and the two of us to do fine work. No matter how competent the photo editor, the job sometimes proves too big for one man. So we thank assistant photo editor Barry Glickman, who must not sleep; he was always there when called upon. Gene Mater's artwork is both beautifully executed and hilarious, a rare combination which adds greatly to the quality of our book. His moral support and suggestions were a real source of strength. Sharon Friedman, our advisor, proved that there's no such thing as free lunch. By divorcing herself from the day-to-day operations of the book, she saved herself headaches. We compensated, though, in edit board meetings, and we thank her for her support. Marv Merin and his able crew at Merin Studios (especially those who shot the co-editors' senior pictures three times apiece) deserve special praise for going out of their way for us so many times. It seems unfair to lump our editors and staff into one sentence, but to thank them individually for their contributions would take much more space than we have. This book would not have been possible without them, and for that they will always be special to us. Journalism Professors McFadden and Sullivan provided professional advice, signatures for checks, and plenty of leeway with our course work. Ruth Mathis acted as switchboard, typing pool, postmistress and an 8:30 A.M. wake-up service. We hope that now that it's over you enjoyed it as much as we did.
